Meditation: “Doctrine is disseminated in vain unless God implant it in our minds...Knowing that all doctrine is useless until God engraves it with his own finger upon our hearts, the apostle Paul beseeches God that He would sanctify [us]...which includes the entire renovation of the man. It is true, [we] have been in part renewed, but Paul desires that God would perfect what is remaining. From this we infer, that we must during our whole life make progress in the pursuit of holiness. Now, if it is the part of God to renew the whole man, there is nothing left for free will. For if it was our part to co-operate with God, Paul would have spoken thus—‘May God aid or promote your sanctification.’ But when he says ‘God sanctify you wholly,’ he makes God the sole Author of the entire work...However, since such completeness is never to be found in this life, it is befitting that some progress be made daily in purity and something be cleansed away from our pollutions, so long as we live in the world.” (John Calvin)
